Wildcat history that posted 30 wins and lost in the 10th Region Finals under coach Richard Gulick. In two seasons, this long range bomber scored 1,000 plus points including averaging over 20 points per game in 1961 with a high of 44 points against Walton Verona. During that senior season, he was Honorable Mention All-State and was voted the #2 player in the 10th Region. He continued his career at Cumberland College.

Cooper is familiar to Wildcat fans as a long range 3-point shooter who never found a 3-point shot he wouldn't take and couldn't make. He holds the career record for most 3-pointers made in a career. But it was on a night in Brooksville that the legend of Timmy Cooper was made. The Cats trailed Bracken County entering the fourth quarter by a sizable margin and despite tight man-to-man coverage, double Resolve to find the "Quitter in You" and make 2014 the year for better health.

Right now is the best time to quit smoking. Get 2014 off to the best start by stopping smoking. It is the gift of better health that you give yourself.

The American Lung Association in Kentucky and Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield have joined together on "Quitter in You," a program to support all smokers in their efforts to quit smoking. It's important for smokers to understand that past attempts at quitting are not failures, but normal and necessary steps to quitting for good. Now is a great time to try again, and the American Lung Association is standing by ready to help.

Quitting smoking is a popular New Year's Resolution but we know it's hard to keep. Quitters need to make a plan and set a date. They also need support and love from family and friends. Health care providers, trained cessation counselors and peers who are going through the quitting process are also important. Through the Quitter in You campaign you can call or chat with a friendly and supportive cessation counselor or join the Freedom From Smoking® Online program.

In addition to quitting, there are three other resolutions that will not only help support stopping smoking but will improve you and your family's health.

1. Make your home smoke-free. Secondhand smoke is lethal. Do not smoke in your home and do not permit anyone else to smoke inside either.

2. Eat healthier. Fruits and vegetables are great healthy snacks. Grab an apple or a carrot instead of a cigarette.

3. Increase your physical activity and exercise. Hitting the gym, going for a walk or riding your bike instead of taking a smoking break is a win-win.

Surgeon General Luther Terry issued the first Report on Smoking and Health on January 11, 1964. Smoking prevalence among U.S. adults has been reduced by half thanks largely to a comprehensive approach that has included tobacco education and cessation programs, new medicines to help smokers quit, and advocacy to increase cigarette taxes and promote smoke-free public places. Despite this, nearly 1 in 5 Americans still smokes. More can and must be done to help all smokers end their addiction.

The American Lung Association in Kentucky and Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield firmly believe that every smoker can quit. Because every person is different, each smoker must find the right combination of techniques to help them quit. By looking back at previous times they've tried to quit, smokers can figure out what helped them stay away from cigarettes and what they might want to do differently next time. If they keep trying and stay motivated, all smokers will be able to end their addiction and begin a new, healthier stage in their life.

Making New Year's Resolutions for better health is easy, keeping them is hard work. That's why quitterinyou.org is great support with a wealth of resources that include individual counseling, online programs, group classes and written materials. Additional support is available from the American Lung Association's Freedom From Smoking® Lung Helpline (1-800-LUNG-USA), Freedom From Smoking® Online (www.FFSonline.org) and Freedom From Smoking® in-person clinics.

Residents need to make sure everyone is warm. First and foremost be cautious with electric heaters and other devices. Make sure they are safely hooked up.

With frigid temperatures and wind chills now in effect, the Kentucky Division of Water reminds citizens to protect the water systems in their homes and businesses from freezing.

When water freezes, it expands. When water freezes in a pipe and expands enough, the pipe bursts, water escapes and serious damage results. Pipes in attics, crawl spaces and outside walls are all vulnerable to freezing, especially if there are cracks or openings that allow cold outside air to flow across the pipes.

To keep pipes from freezing, wrap hot and cold water pipes in insulation or layers of newspaper, covering the newspapers with plastic to keep out moisture. Allow a trickle of water to run from a cold faucet that is farthest from the water meter or one that has frozen in the past. This will keep the water moving so that it cannot freeze and will help relieve pressure should ice form in the pipes. Open kitchen and bathroom cabinet doors to allow warm air to circulate around the pipes.

If pipes freeze, remove the insulation, completely open all the faucets and pour hot water over the pipes or wrap them with towels soaked in hot water, starting where they are most exposed to the cold. You may also use a hand-held hair dryer or electric heating pad if there is no standing water. Apply heat until full water pressure is restored.

Do not use a blowtorch, kerosene or propane heater, charcoal stove or other open flame device to thaw a pipe. A blowtorch can make water in a frozen pipe boil and cause the pipe to explode. All open flames in homes present a serious fire danger, as well as a severe risk of exposure to lethal carbon monoxide. If you are unable to locate or reach the frozen area, call a licensed plumber.

When away from the house for an extended period of time, consider draining the water system completely. To drain the system, shut off the main valve and turn on every water fixture (both hot and cold lines) until water stops running. When returning to the house, turn on the main valve and let each fixture run until the pipes are full again.

Five generations of the Webster family were together for Christmas on Dec. 21, 2013. The family met and celebrated the holiday together at Mt. Carmel Baptist Church in Williamstown.

Daniel Ammerman and Martha Taylor were wed in holy matrimony on January 31, 1822.

"Republicans know how to throw a party!"

The Pendleton County Republicans enjoyed a wonderful Christmas celebration on Tuesday, December 17 at Howard's Place in Falmouth. The evening began with a short business meeting to finalize the 2013 accounts and then the annual awards were presented.

The members were treated with a special visit from Mr. Matt Bevin and his Senate campaign staff. Those present shared desserts and coffee, which were provided by the Executive Committee from the Fourth Congressional District.

The night ended with the members signing Christmas cards to send to servicemen and women who are away from home during the holidays. The party members and guests also collected items and filled care packages to send to troops stationed in Afghanistan. A sincere thank you goes out to all who participated.

The next meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, January 21 at Howard's Place Restaurant. The guest speaker will be Mr. David Adams, the president of Kentucky Citizens Judicial. Adams is currently working against the government insurance mandate and the Kentucky State Health Exchange. If you are interested in how Obamacare is affecting you and your neighbors, please attend and learn. The main goal with the Pendleton County Republican Party is to establish a venue where members' voices may be heard and the citizens can learn about the important issues of the day. The Republican Party wants and needs informed voters in Pendleton County!

The Outlook travels to Falmouth, Jamaica

Jim and Ann Thaxton enjoyed the holidays cruising the Caribbean spending Christmas exploring a cave on the beautiful island of Curacao and New Year's Eve rafting on the Martha Brae River in Falmouth, Jamaica.

The couple also traveled to the Embrara Indian Village in a 36-foot dugout canoe and rafted through the rain forest of Costa Rica on the beautiful Pacuari River.

During the Viet Nam War, the US Army turned to the Embrara tribal leaders to train their elite Rangers in jungle survival prior to the soldiers deployment into the jungles of Southeast Asia.

The Thaxton's carried a copy of The Falmouth Outlook with them to Falmouth, Jamaica a city founded in 1762. However, the town's history predates Columbus' arrival there in 1494. Falmouth's citizens were leaders in the Caribbean abolition movement that ended slavery in Jamaica in 1839 a quarter of a century before President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation.

Back Yonder

By Marvin Sullivan

"The Old Mare"

I haven't always liked horses. In fact there was a time in my life when I hated the beasts. During my early years while working on the family farm, Dad was one of the last farmers to purchase a tractor. We did all our farming with horses. While all the other boys in the community were driving up and down the road on tractors, I was driving horses. At that time, I really admired these boys and would have traded our team for anything that resembled a tractor. Today, I would give anything to have that team.

The team's color was black and white spotted, or commonly referred to as pinto. They were full sisters, but their personalities were opposite. We called them Jeep and Jill.

Jeep was one of the best horses that was ever put in harness. She was mild mannered; she was broke to single line; she was a good rider; she was easy to catch; and she was pretty. The only bad habit she had was when a horsefly would land on her rear end. Once a horsefly landed on her, she would start bucking and kicking. As soon as you saw one land on her, you had better be prepared to kill the fly or suffer the consequences.

Jill, on the other hand, was always a little crazy. She was hard to catch. When you went to the field to catch her in the morning, she would perk her ears up and run. She could never learn the single line and she tramped on more tobacco plants than weeds. She would shy and jump at any little object along the road. She could smell a hog from a mile away, and any farm with a hog always proved a problem when passing. I could go on and on about her faults if I only had time, but to condense it, the old mare was a royal "PAIN."

The event that I am about to pen happened one summer day when we had finished unloading a load of loose hay. We had no hay baler and had to harvest all our hay with a pitchfork. The team was standing, hitched to the wagon in front of the barn. Some friends had come from Cincinnati to visit us and had brought with them a very pretty teenage girl who was their neighbor. The girl was my age and "boy" was she pretty. She had long blond wavy hair that would bounce right back in place whenever she turned her head. I feel certain she would have made an excellent model on one of today's shampoo commercials.

I will not describe her further, but I can say that I immediately began to think of ways to impress her.

Back during the 1950s there was a very definite difference between city kids and country kids. Today, country kids travel so often that they are able to blend right in and not "stand out." I was backward, shy, and easily embarrassed. Situations that embarrassed me "to death" in the 1950s would in no way have the slightest effect on the young people of today. City kids, at this time, very seldom came to the country and therefore, being able to see and touch farm animals proved to be a treat. (Here was my chance!)

I decided I would invite the girl to take a ride with me on the hay wagon. I surely could impress her with my expert driving ability and my calmness at controlling the two gigantic horses, with only the two small check lines. When I got my chance, I ask her, and she accepted.

I helped her upon the wagon and turned an old fruit crate upside down for our seat. I was really in "Seventh Heaven." If the other boys with tractors could only see me now! Our ride began and so did my problem.

One very obvious "trait" Old Jill had, which was really not a fault, would occur when you began working her shortly after a rest. A rest of any length would cause her to have gas build-up. I really don't think she had a medical problem, because she actually seemed to enjoy relieving herself. Since the only people, ordinarily in the presence of the team when this occurred, were Dad, my brothers, and me, there was never any embarrassment, but only frequent joking and laughter.

This occasion was different. I had been so eager to impress the young lady with the ride that Jill's problem had never crossed my mind until we had begun our journey and the sounds commenced.

We turned by the side of the barn and headed down a small grade. With each step the old mare made, there began distortions and vibrations. The sweet scent of the young lady's perfume was tainted with another fragrance.

I attempted conversation: "My it has been hot...do you think it will rain?...Have you been fishing lately?...How is school going?... Have you seen any good TV programs lately?...etc...."

I finally ran out of something to say, but the old mare continued. The ride only lasted for some ten minutes, but it seemed like hours.

I mumbled and tried to continue my conversation, in hopes that I would drown out the obnoxious sounds. All my attempts were in vain and I turned the team and headed back to the barn.

As I turned, I thought I would give Jill a sturdy slap with the lines. As the line made contact on Old Jill's behind, she made a jump, and let out a final volley of tremendous force, and headed quickly to the barn.

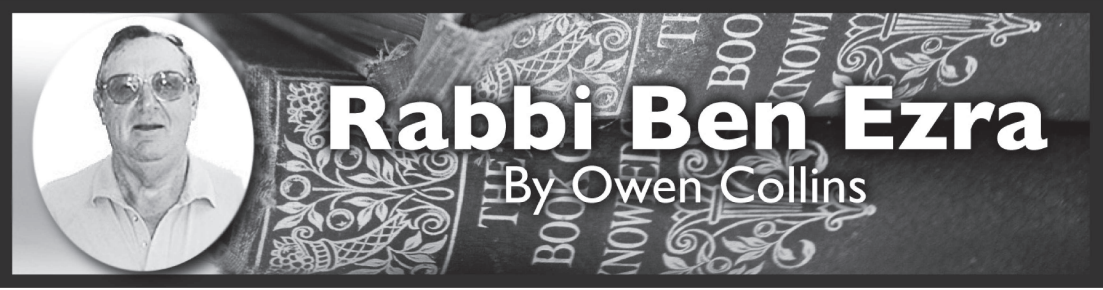

When we arrived at the barn, the young lady did not wait to be helped from the wagon. She made no comment, and headed directly to the car.

Since that day, I still get nervous every time I ask a lady to ride with me in a wagon.

Jeep and Jill, the famous team in "The Old Mare." Jill, on the right, was the culprit who passed gas when I took the girl for a ride on the hay wagon. I am the little guy with the straw hat (1951). My brother, Maurice, is behind me.

Let us tenderly and kindly cherish, therefore, the means of knowledge. Let us dare to read, think, speak, and write.

New Year Resolutions: How Can We Improve!

Dedicated to Janelle Gardner, By the Rabbi

I have heard many say that they did not make New Year resolutions because they were so easily broken that they simply (the breaking thereof) reinforced bad feelings about themselves. Admittedly, we often make resolutions about losing weight which is a tough one to keep, and the way we make the resolution often dooms us to failure. However, by turning the resolution into a goal we have a much better chance of succeeding.

For example, if we resolve to lose 25 pounds by April 15 and after we lose 10 and our metabolism levels off, we frequently become discouraged and throw in the towel. More appropriately, we can set a goal to eat fish three times a week and chicken twice and drink tea or some other beverage without sugar and to exercise at least three times a week and to stay away from heavy dessert; these are all manageable. And, we are much more apt to accomplish the 25 pound loss by concentrating on these smaller contributing goals. There are many positive aspects to setting goals, and the New Year is an excellent time to look forward and set some goals on issues on which we would like to improve.

Following are some ideas that have worked for me:

- Write down goals. They do not have to be fancy. Place them where you will see them frequently. I tape them to the corner of my bathroom mirror.

- Normally, the more specific one makes his or her goals, the more likely he or she will achieve them.

- Goals should be realistic. I plan to walk a mile at least three times a week is stronger than I plan to exercise and run a marathon when I get into shape.

- Reward oneself for making progress. For example, I will go to a movie this Saturday if I refrain from smoking for three days.

- Expect some setbacks. If it were easy, everyone would do it. If one breaks his or her diet, and eats a quart of ice cream, all is not lost. Start again tomorrow with your diet. The road to success is frequently littered with shortcomings and temporary failure.

- Include goals on more than physical needs. Goals within the family. Spiritual goals such as faithfulness to the church or one's choice. Intellectual goals such as reading a book a month. Interpersonal goals such as mending fences with an adversary. These and many others are fair game.

- Financial goals can pay big dividends. From not wasting money to investing for one's retirement.

- Reinforce ones goals by utilizing one's subconscious mental powers. Just before retiring, read aloud your goals and let your subconscious mind work on them while asleep. For example, say "I am not hungry; I don't want to eat!"

- Review your list on New Year's Day, 2015. I have often been surprised at the number I accomplished, and I think you will also.

HAPPY GOALING!!!

Steffen announces his campaign for the 24th Senate District seat

Campbell County native serves as elementary school principal

Jason Steffen, a Campbell County native and elementary school principal, is announcing his campaign for the Kentucky 24th Senate District seat that covers Campbell, Pendleton and Bracken counties.

Steffen, 37, a Democrat who grew up in Fort Thomas and lives in Southgate, is the principal of Mary A. Goetz Elementary in Ludlow. This is his first campaign for elected office.

Steffen said he is running because the people of the district have been underserved.

"Over the past several years, the interests of the majority of the 24th Senate District have gone unheard in Frankfort," Steffen said. "Through representation that did not reflect the constituents of the district, to the election of political candidates outside the core values of the district, it is time for someone who stands up and represents the interests of Bracken, Campbell, and Pendleton counties.

"As a lifelong resident of the district, who grew up in Campbell County and shares the values and sentiment of the 24th District, I proudly announce my candidacy for State Senator of Kentucky's 24th District," Steffen said.

One of six children to Daniel and Carol Steffen, Steffen attended Fort Thomas Independent School District schools graduating from Highlands High School. "My parents still live in the house where I was raised," he said.

Steffen attended Northern Kentucky University, graduating with degrees in Education and History. He has 12 years of experience in education, having served as a social studies teacher and elementary school principal.

Steffen coaches youth sports and is commissioner of the Northern Kentucky Middle School Athletic Association. He also owns a small business, Gear Up Sportswear and Designs in Latonia, Ky.

Plant ice resistant trees to assure their survival during the icy winter months in Kentucky

Winter storms that coat everything in layers of luminous ice leave a very beautiful but dangerous calling card. We know ice covered trees are susceptible to breakage from the added weight. But if you take a look around your yard, how do you know which of your trees are more likely to give in to the devastation of ice layers?

Scam alert concerning HMH

ATTENTION: It has come to the attention of Harrison Memorial Hospital that individuals in the community are receiving phone calls from an 866-218-7985 number.

With an automated call, identifying itself as "Harrison Memorial Hospital."

The hospital would like to make it clear that these calls are NOT from Harrison Memorial Hospital. We are NOT requesting refills on medications. This is a scam!

For your protection, do not give any information and disconnect immediately! Never divulge personal information.

If you have any questions, please free to contact Harrison Memorial Hospital Administration Department.

"There are a number of growth features that increase a tree species' susceptibility to breakage in ice storms," says Tehukki Andersen, BCMA, CTSP* and staff arborist with the Tree Care Industry Association. "Among them are: included bark, decaying or dead branches, increased surface area of lateral (side) branches, broad crowns or imbalanced crowns, and fine branch size."

Included bark results from in-grown bark in branch junctions. This is a weak connection and increases the likelihood of branch breakage under ice-loading conditions. "As an example," says Andersen, "Bradford pear branches are known to break during ice storms; this is because they commonly have included bark in branch junctions. In contrast, the Aristocrat pear has few branches with included bark and sustains less damage during ice storms."

Decaying or dead branches are already weakened and have a high probability of breaking when loaded with ice. The surface area of lateral branches increases as the number of branches and the broadness of the crown increase. With an increased surface area, more ice can accumulate on lateral branches; the greater ice load results in greater branch failure.

Many broad-leaved tree species, when grown in the open, form broad crowns (decurent branching), increasing their susceptibility to ice storms. Examples include Siberian elm, American elm, hackberry, green ash, and honey locust. Trees with imbalanced crowns are also more susceptible to ice damage. Generally, though, susceptibility can vary greatly depending on the time of year, geographic location and overall health of the tree.

Ice storm damage management and prevention:

Plan, then plant Think about your future. When planting a new tree in your yard, you should have a clear understanding of the size that tree is expected to grow. Is it too close to the house? The overhead wires? The sidewalk? Proper tree placement, away from structures, will reduce property damage. Trees should not be planted in locations where growth will interfere with above-ground utilities - branches that grow into power lines and fail during ice storms create power outages and safety hazards.

Trees pruned regularly from a young age should be more resistant to ice storms as a result of removal of structurally weak branches, decreased surface area of lateral branches, and decreased wind resistance. Professional arborists can install cables and braces to increase a tree's tolerance to ice accumulation in situations where individual trees must be stabilized to prevent their failure.

After storm damage has occurred, hazardous trees and branches require immediate removal to ensure safety and prevent additional property damage. Trees that can be saved should have broken branches properly pruned to the branch collar (stubs and flush-cut pruning result in weakly attached sprouts and future insect and disease problems). Loose bark should be cut back only to where it is solidly attached to the tree. A split fork can be repaired through cabling and bracing.

Tree species resistant to ice damage can be planted to reduce tree and property damage from ice storms:

Find a professional

A professional arborist can assess your landscape and work with you to determine the best trees and shrubs to plant for your existing landscape. Contact the Tree Care Industry Association, a public and professional resource on trees and arboriculture since 1938. It has more than 2,000 member companies who recognize stringent safety and performance standards and who are required to carry liability insurance. TCIA has the nation's only Accreditation program that helps consumers find tree care companies that have been inspected and accredited based on: adherence to industry standards for quality and safety; maintenance of trained, professional staff; and dedication to ethics and quality in business practices. An easy way to find a tree care service provider in your area is to use the "Locate Your Local TCIA Member Companies" program. You can use this service by calling 1-800-733-2622 or by doing a ZIP Code search on www.treecaretips.org.

Tips to help when the electricity goes out

With Winter Storm Hercules impacting more than 100 million people across multiple states, power outages could affect residents over the next few days. The nonprofit Federal Alliance for Safe Homes (FLASH) offers the following 19 tips to keep families safe and comfortable:

Family Safety

1. Include power outages in your family disaster plan, identifying alternate means of transportation and routes to home, school or work.

2. Keep extra cash on hand since an extended power outage may prevent you from withdrawing money from automatic teller machines or banks.

3. Keep your car fuel tank at least half-full, gas stations rely on electricity to power their pumps.

4. During a power outage, resist the temptation to call 9-1-1 for information—that's what your battery-powered radio is for.

5. Turn off all lights but one, to alert you when power resumes.

6. Check on elderly neighbors, friends, or relatives who may need assistance if weather is severe during the outage.

7. Keep a supply of flashlights, batteries and a battery-powered radio on hand. Do not use candles as they pose a fire hazard.

Keeping Warm

8. Put on layers of warm clothing. Never burn charcoal for heating or cooking indoors.

9. If you are using a gas heater or fireplace to stay warm, be sure the area is properly ventilated.

10. Go to a designated public shelter if your home loses power or heat during periods of extreme cold. Text SHELTER + your ZIP code to 43362 (4FEMA) to find the nearest shelter in your area (example: shelter 12345)

Food

11. Keep a supply of non-perishable foods, medicine, baby supplies, and pet food as appropriate on hand. Be sure to have at least one gallon of water per person per day on hand.

12. Avoid opening the fridge or freezer. Food should be safe as long as the outage lasts no more than four hours.

13. Have one or more coolers for cold food storage in case power outage is prolonged. Perishable foods should not be stored for more than two hours above 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

14. If you eat food that was refrigerated or frozen, check it carefully for signs of spoilage.

Generators

15. Do not run a generator inside a home or garage. Use gas-powered generators only in well-ventilated areas.

16. Connect only individual appliances to portable generators.

17. Don't plug emergency generators into electric outlets or hook them directly to your home's electrical system — as they can feed electricity back into the power lines, putting you and line workers in danger.

When Power Returns

18. When power comes back on, it may come back with momentary "surges" or "spikes" that can damage equipment such as computers and motors in appliances like the air conditioner, refrigerator, washer or furnace.

19. When power is restored, wait a few minutes before turning on major appliances to help eliminate further problems caused by a sharp increase in demand.

Support for smoke-free law in Kentucky continues to grow; 7 in 10 favor a ban

According to the 2013 Kentucky Health Issues Poll (KHIP), nearly 7 in 10 Kentucky adults (65 percent) favor a statewide smoke-free law, while fewer than 3 in 10 (29 percent) oppose such a law. Support for a law has consistently increased since the Kentucky Health Issues Poll first started asking the question in 2010. Northern Kentuckians are similar to the Commonwealth in support for a smoke free law. Twenty-six states and the District of Columbia have comprehensive smoke-free laws; Kentucky does not.

"We know that no amount of second-hand smoke is risk free," says Ann Barnum, senior program officer, Healthy Choices about Substance Abuse, Interact for Health. "Smoke-free environments that would result from a comprehensive smoke-free law would reduce the health risks of secondhand smoke to nonsmokers," says Dr. Lynne Saddler, district director of health at the Northern Kentucky Health Department.

There is a clear relationship between support for a statewide smoke-free law and whether one smokes. Among those who have never smoked, 8 in 10 (84 percent) favor a smoke-free law, while 7 in 10 former smokers (72 percent) also support a law. Three in ten Kentucky adults said they were current smokers (33 percent). Of those, nearly 4 in 10 (38 percent) favor a statewide smoke-free law.

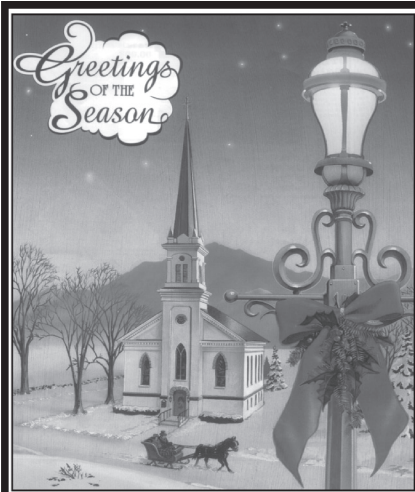

A majority of Democrats (69 percent), Republicans (64 percent) and Independents (57 percent) reported support for a statewide smoke-free law.

More information about Kentuckians' views on smoke-free laws and other topics is available online at <https://www.interactforhealth.org/kentucky-health-issues-poll>.

The 2013 Kentucky Health Issues Poll (KHIP) is funded by Interact for Health and the Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky. KHIP was conducted Oct. 25-Nov. 26, 2013, by the Institute for Policy Research at the University of Cincinnati. A random sample of 1,551 adults from throughout Kentucky was interviewed by telephone. This included 951 landline interviews and 600 cell phone interviews with cell phone users. In 95 of 100 cases, the statewide estimates will be accurate to ± 2.3%. There are other sources of variation inherent in public opinion studies, such as non-response, question wording, or context effects that can introduce error or bias. For more information about the Kentucky Health Issues Poll, please visit www.healthy-ky.org or www.interactforhealth.org/kentucky-health-issues-poll.

Interact for Health, formerly The Health Foundation of Greater Cincinnati, improves the health of people in the Cincinnati region by being a catalyst for health and wellness. How to Keep Your New Year's Resolutions

About half of all American adults (48%, according to a Marist poll taken in December) say they are at least somewhat likely to make a New Year's resolution this year. Their top vows: to lose weight (19%), quit smoking (12%) and exercise more (10%). Sound familiar?

The Marist poll also found that while 65% of people who made a resolution in 2008 kept their promise for at least part of the year, 35% never even made it out of the gate. Indeed, when you wake bleary-eyed on the first day of a new year - or decade - resolutions to "cut back" and "moderate" seem both an excellent idea and an impossibly hazy dream. (See TIME's special report on health and happiness.)

But consider this: if hard-core addicts can break bad habits - some by moderating, not just quitting - there's still hope for you. Whether your goal for 2010 is to get fit or tame your drinking, experts say there's a lot you can learn from people who have successfully moderated their habits to help keep you off the resolution merry-go-round.

• Don't Kid Yourself
"The most important thing is to be honest with yourself," says Howard Josepher, a former heroin addict and president of Exponents Inc., an organization that provides support and educational services to people with substance-misuse issues. "You need to know the difference between enjoying yourself and self-medicating. It's not that self-medicating is necessarily bad - but you should give yourself parameters. If you are adhering to them, okay. If not, you need to check yourself."

Successful moderators decide in advance how much is too much - and stick to their limit, no matter what. Have a cookie a day if that's what you've deemed acceptable. But if you cheat by having "just one more," know that you are only cheating yourself and exacerbating the problem, experts say. The point is to learn how to hold yourself accountable.

For those who are concerned in particular about drinking, a free, research-based online tool called Drinker's Checkup can help you determine whether you are drinking at unhealthy levels, and what to do if you are.

• Quit Cold Turkey - Temporarily

"Theoretically, there are very good reasons to take a break from a behavior, totally," says Reid Hester, director of research at Behavior Therapy Associates, explaining that an initial period of complete abstinence can make it easier for people to moderate behavior by eliminating the habitual, automatic aspect of the unwanted activity.

Take a cue from the self-help group Moderation Management (MM), which advises problem drinkers to abstain completely for a month before attempting moderate drinking. If you can't achieve a month of abstinence, the thinking goes, successful moderation is unlikely.

The best way to stay on course is frequent self-monitoring; use as many behavior-modification tools, support groups and programs as you can. In October, Hester and colleagues published a randomized controlled trial in the Journal of Substance Abuse Treatment comparing heavy drinkers who used MM's website to help them quit with those who used the MM site plus another online tool that teaches behavior-control tactics and helps chart drinking.

While both groups significantly reduced their drinking and alcohol-related problems, the group that used the additional tool had more days abstinent and drank less when they drank.

• Do What the Dalai Lama Would Do

Alan Marlatt, director of the Addictive Behaviors Research Center at the University of Washington, studies "mindfulness-based relapse prevention," which uses meditation and other ideas from Buddhist teachings to help people break bad habits.

"Between stimulus and response, there's a space, and in that space is our power to choose our response, and in our response lies our growth and freedom," says Marlatt, quoting author and Holocaust survivor Victor Frankl. Marlatt says, "Mindfulness gets you into that space."

Being mindful may involve traditional meditation, in which you sit quietly and observe your thoughts and breathing without judgment. But here, it is also used to focus awareness on thoughts and feelings that lead to unwanted behavior. Simply recognizing the triggers to relapse can help you choose not to give into them. "When there's a fork in the road, craving is pulling you one way. Well, what's the other way? You have to look down the other road and see where it takes you. Then you have a choice, instead of being on autopilot," says Marlatt.

One tactic he recommends for resisting those cravings is called "urge-surfing." It involves being mindful of the fact that craving is like a wave - it rises to a peak, then falls. This happens whether you yield to the urge or not, though most people erroneously think their craving will escalate endlessly unless they give in. In fact, succumbing to cravings only reinforces them - resisting, in contrast, reinforces resistance. Marlatt advises watching your urge, noting its peak and "surfing" it, rather than allowing it to wipe you out.

Another trick is to recognize that willpower is like a muscle - it gets stronger with appropriate use but ultimately weakens if overloaded. That's why Hester recommends setting short-term goals that are "moderately difficult, realistic, concrete and measurable." As with weight-lifting, starting at a level that is challenging but not overwhelming can provide a sense of achievement and success - which can give you the drive to take on bigger challenges.

• Don't Try to Scare Yourself Straight

Research shows that in the long term, the pleasure of victory is a better incentive than the agony of defeat. "Punishment is a poor motivator," says Hester. "It sets people up for failure. If all you do is punish yourself for failure, you won't stay motivated to change for very long."

Instead, reward yourself for sticking to your limits and focus on the benefits of changing. For instance, if your goal is to drink less or lose weight, treat yourself to something you want - a new book or DVD, say - each time you successfully resist a tempting dessert or achieve a goal, like a month of abstinence. Success tends to beget greater success. If you do slip back into old patterns, avoid recriminations. "Don't say, 'I can't do it,' " says Marlatt. "People make mistakes. If you keep working at it, you will get better over time. That's what the research shows."

For some people, trying to moderate bad habits is not achievable or takes more effort than abstaining altogether - as the philosopher St. Augustine put it, "Complete abstinence is easier than perfect moderation." Recognizing this by trying and failing can also be a critical step toward behavior change.

• Get Better Friends

Consciously and unconsciously, people tend to imitate those around them. That's why the latest research shows that things like happiness, smoking cessation and obesity can spread like a contagion through social networks. So surround yourself with friends who can also be role models. "Make sure that people you hang out with are people who look and act the way you would like to. Social imitation is the easiest form not only of flattery but of self-improvement," says Stanton Peele, author of Seven Tools to Beat Addiction.

Social support is critical to changing all kinds of behavior. Good friends can not only help you through slip-ups but also help keep your New Year's resolutions from taking over your life. Rather than obsessing about what you shouldn't be doing, think about things you should, experts say. The distraction will help you curb bad habits. "Focus on your higher goals and positive activities, things that both sustain you and fill your life," says Peele. If you regularly engage in meaningful activities that give you pleasure - whether it's visiting friends, picking up a hobby, taking a class or doing volunteer work (one of the most overlooked sources of personal joy and meaning is helping others) - you'll simply have less time to crave or engage in the behavior that you want to reduce.

Flu could hit younger population harder

By Kelly Cantrall
The News-Enterprise

Local and national health officials say younger adults could be impacted this flu season more than the older population, who generally are considered to be at a higher risk of contracting the virus.

The predominant strain of influenza virus so far this season has been the H1N1 virus that caused a pandemic in 2009. At that time, the virus sickened children and younger adults more than those 65 and older. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report the same could happen again.

Officials aren't sure why it affects younger people more than others, but one theory is the older population already has been exposed to the strain and have more immunity, said Wendy Keown, director of community outreach at Lincoln Trail District Health Department.

This season's vaccine includes protection against the H1N1 virus.

The health department's coverage region continues to remain relatively healthy, with no flu cases confirmed by a culture. But influenza-like illness is increasing and some positive cases have been confirmed by rapid screenings, a different kind of test for the flu, Keown said.

Kentucky as a whole is considered to be at a "regional" level of flu cases by the CDC, but the level of activity is high in nearby states such as Tennessee, Keown said.

"So we fully expect that will occur here shortly," she said. Some severe cases have been reported in the nation among young and middle-aged adults, according to the CDC, and hospitalizations and deaths have been reported. There have been four pediatric deaths reported.

Keown said this shows the flu can still be dangerous, even among healthy younger people. She recommends receiving a vaccination, washing hands frequently and seeking medical treatment if symptoms arise. Those who get sick should not go to work or school.

Glaucoma Awareness Month: Protect against vision loss through early detection

January is National Glaucoma Awareness Month, and the Kentucky Optometric Association (KOA) is urging people take control of their eye health through early detection to help minimize the risk of developing glaucoma. Glaucoma leads to progressive damage to the optic nerve and a loss of nerve tissue, which ultimately results in loss of vision.

Currently, 2.7 million people in the United States over age 40 have glaucoma. It is one of the leading causes of blindness in the United States, yet understanding and awareness of the disease is still relatively low. According to the American Optometric Association:

• 72 percent incorrectly think glaucoma has early warning signs. It does not. Only a comprehensive eye exam administered by an eye doctor can detect the disease.

• 47 percent incorrectly believe glaucoma is preventable. It is not preventable, but it can be treated, and progression can be slowed if it is detected and treated early.

"Annual, dilated comprehensive eye exams play a critical role in detection and treatment of glaucoma," said Dr. Ben Gaddie, who practices optometry in the Louisville area, serves as president of the international Optometric Glaucoma Society and is a past president of the KOA. "These exams allow eye doctors to thoroughly examine the pressure and nerves inside the eyes for potential signs of the disease. Early detection, prompt treatment and regular monitoring can help control glaucoma, and therefore, reduce the chances of progressive vision loss."

Americans also are unaware if they are at risk for developing glaucoma. Only 13 percent of U.S. adults know that a person's race could place them at a higher risk of developing glaucoma.

According to the Glaucoma Research Foundation, glaucoma is six to eight times more common in African-Americans than Caucasians. Additional factors that can increase the risk of developing glaucoma include those who have a family history of glaucoma, hypothyroidism, are over age 60 or individuals who have had severe eye trauma.

Treatment for glaucoma includes prescription eye drops and medicines to lower pressure in the eyes. In some cases, laser treatment or surgery may be effective in reducing pressure.

Local student honored by Berea College

Caleb Browning of Falmouth recently received the 2013 Berea College Pinnacle Scholar Award of Excellence for his accomplishments in the field of service.

The Pinnacle Scholars Award program recognizes outstanding high school seniors for their work in the fields of science, music, or service. Students are nominated by a local teacher or guidance counselor, and Berea College faculty and staff then select the top students in each category to receive the award.

Berea College created the Pinnacle Scholars Award to recognize students in the region who show a strong potential to exert a positive influence on the future of Appalachia. The program helps the College fulfill its mission of serving the region through a focus on learning, labor, and service. Berea guarantees no student pays tuition and admits only academically promising students, primarily from Appalachia, who have limited economic resources.

Caleb Browning (center) of Falmouth accepts the 2013 Berea College Pinnacle Scholar Award of Excellence.

Determining this year's winners was particularly challenging due to the number and caliber of nominees. Caleb was chosen out of more than 400 nominees and was honored at a formal awards ceremony earlier this month.

Money tips for students: Play your cards right

As students become more responsible for paying their own bills, they need to be aware of the types of cards available, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Debit cards are tied to a bank account. When someone uses a debit card, the money is automatically deducted from the account. Most colleges issue a type of debit card to students that can be used to buy books, supplies and meals. In that case, the card is not tied to a bank account but is preloaded with funds deposited each semester or quarter.

When a debit card has been lost or stolen, report it to the bank or credit union immediately to limit losses from unauthorized use.

Credit cards offer what is essentially an interest-free loan if the balance is paid in full each month. Students who use credit cards should pay them off at the end of each pay period when possible to avoid paying interest fees. Most credit cards also offer cash advance services at a higher interest rate.

Lost or stolen credit cards should also be reported immediately. However, there is a $50 limit to the consumer's liability on fraudulent charges with stolen credit cards.

ATM cards allow users to withdraw cash from their accounts when the bank or credit union is closed. Most banks and credit unions charge a fee when ATM cards are used at a machine not owned by that institution's network, and those fees can add up. Students should not use an ATM card outside their network unless absolutely necessary.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky's grant and scholarship programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). It provides financial literacy videos at <http://itsmoney.kheaa.com>. KHEAA also provides free copies of "It's Money, Baby," a guide to financial literacy, to Kentucky schools and residents upon request at publications@kheaa.com.

To learn how to plan and prepare for higher education, go to www.gotocollege.ky.gov. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926, ext. 6-7372.

Filing FAFSA early gives students better chance at grants

Kentucky students planning to attend an in-state college or university beginning in fall 2014 should file the 2014-2015 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) as soon as possible after Jan. 1. Filing early increases a student's chance of receiving a state need-based grant administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA). The FAFSA is available at www.fafsa.gov.

A student attending a college or university in Kentucky may qualify for a College Access Program (CAP) Grant. To qualify, a student must show financial need and be enrolled at least half-time toward an associate's or bachelor's degree.

A student attending a Kentucky private college or university may qualify for a Kentucky Tuition Grant (KTG) in addition to a CAP Grant. To qualify for KTG, a student must show financial need and be enrolled full-time.

Funding for CAP and KTG is limited, with awards made on a first-come, first-served basis.

SPORTS

Athletes

double teaming and triple teaming, Timmy exploded for 29 points in the fourth quarter including seven three-pointers. That stands as the third most points scored in a quarter in KHSAA history. Timmy excelled on the golf course, too, leading the Cats to two region golf titles and continuing on his golf career at Union College where he is poised to finish his senior season.

Nancy Moreland Wood

While Dickie King was the first Wildcat to score 1000 points in a career, Nancy Moreland Wood was the first Ladycat to accomplish the milestone. Because her team was loading with guards, the slight built forward tipped off at center and used her quickness and savvy to score bucketloads. Against the #1 team in the state, Boone County, and a game in which 181 points were scored combined, Nancy led her Ladycats with 26 points. She is a member of the 10th Region Hall of Fame and continued her playing days at Georgetown College. There she excelled on the hardcourt and on the softball diamond.

Kim Hinton Lail

Hinton Lail was a teammate of Nancy and is one of four Ladycats who played from 1982-86 that all scored 1,000 or more points in their career. The athletic, slashing guard was unguardable in the open court and was able to consistently find her way to the basket, take the hit and finish the play. She holds the Ladycat single game scoring record with 45 points against Deming in 1985 and holds the single game FG made record from the same game with 17. She did hold the career record for free throw's made until it was recently broken.

Rick Elrod

Elrod is generally considered one of the best Wildcat basketball players in PCHS history. He was drafted by the NBA's Phoenix Suns and is one of three Wildcat players to have their number retired. He is a member of both the 10th Region Hall of Fame and the Georgetown College Hall of Fame where he continued playing after high school. But Rick's fondest highlight is winning the Larry Price Hustle Award and then seeing his two sons, the late Stephen Elrod and Jon Elrod win the same award. Rick's son Jon was a teammate of our next honoree on the 2005 10th Region Championship team.

Joey Verax

Verax was a smooth forward that could beat you inside or out and one of three members of the 2005 team to score 1000 points in their career. Joey was a big part of creating a special memory for the PC community as they rallied around the Wildcats in 2005 and packed Rupp Arena in red, black and white. Joey is a member of the 10th Region Hall of Fame and was named the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference Player of the Year while at Transylvania. He is one of three PCHS 1,000 point club members who played at Transy after their PCHS career was completed.

Sheila Ockerman

Ockerman presently lives in Florida and unable to attend tonight but she was a guard on those mid-80s scoring machine Ladycat teams. She was a smooth shooting guard that balanced Nancy Wood's inside game with her outside shooting. She has a fond memory of the 38th District rival Bracken County when they trailed by five points with only 11 seconds left in OT but was able to roar back and win the game.

Bobby Lee Wyatt

Sheila's cousin Bobby Lee Wyatt lives close to her in Florida and he too was unable to make it tonight. Bobby is a Pendleton County legend who scored over 1800 points in his career and held the scoring record for many years. He continued on his playing days at Walker Junior College in Alabama and then at Louisiana Tech. Yes, the same Louisiana Tech that a few years earlier had a starting QB on the football team by the name of Phil Robertson. Bobby's #22 is retired and hangs in the rafters here at PCHS and he is a member of the 10th Region Hall of Fame.

Andrew Gosney

Gosney had that rare blend of power game on the low post and silkiness on the perimeter. He would overpower defenders when they tried to guard him on the post and blow past them when they tried to stop him on the perimeter. He was All 10th Region twice. He continued his playing days at Union College where he started the 2nd part of his freshmen season and was named Mid-South Conference Player of the Week twice.

And now to enter the Turner portion of our program.

Nick Turner

Turner was a power player with a soft touch and played with intelligence that allowed him to score against bigger and stronger opponents while overwhelming someone small than he. He enjoyed most the time with his teammates and lifelong friends. He was named Honorable Mention All Region his junior season and All Region his senior season. He was also a starter on the 1993 Wildcat Freshmen team that won the 10th Region Championship.

Dave Turner

To Nick's power game was cousin Dave Turner's slick play at point guard. He stands fifth on the scoring list but that is after missing the last 20 games of his senior season. He tore his ACL and played the next game on it. How did he finish his career

January 7, 1927: The Harlem Globetrotters travel 48 miles west from Chicago to play their first game in Hinckley, Illinois.

Bill Turner

Possibly the most prolific scoring trio of brothers in Kentucky High School history, Bill Turner is the middle brother. He was a slashing forward and earned All Region Honorable Mention honors while scoring over 1400 points in his Wildcat career. He was part of three 38th District Championship teams.

Talbert Turner Jr.

When you combine Talbert Jr's scoring with his two younger brothers scoring, they combined for over 6,000 points. Talbert Turner Jr is not only the most prolific scorer in PCHS history, his 3,183 points stand 14th in KHSAA history 30 years and a 3-point line later. He scored 1,113 points in a single season which is sixth all time in KHSAA history and holds the single game record of 54 points against Nicholas Co. He was a member of a contingent of Kentucky High School All-Stars who traveled to Europe playing teams in a variety of countries. He continued his basketball career at Morehead State where he was named to the OVC All-Rookie team and OVC Scholar Athlete. A member of the 10th Region Hall of Fame, he was recently selected for the Northern KY Hall of Fame and will be inducted later this year.

Cathy Roseberry Thomas

Thomas lives in Georgia and could not make it back tonight but like Talbert, Cathy took her high scoring talents from the courts of PCHS to the arena of Morehead State where she played two seasons. She broke Nancy Moreland Woods career scoring record till Nancy's little sister would reclaim it in just a few years. Cathy was a slashing and long range shooter that would fight tooth and nail for every single point. She is very proud of the Miss Dedication award she won and had a career high of 33 points.

Tyler Mains

Tyler Mains is working in South Carolina, starting a new job just this week and was unable to join us tonight. He was the ultimate point guard who looked to setup his teammates, two of which are members of the 1000 point club. But he was able to score on slashes to the basket or 3-pointers himself. He leads the Wildcats in career assists with 438, stands ninth on the career 3-pointer list and has the record for most assists in a season.

Keaton Belcher

Many of Tyler's assists found their ways into the hands of PC Wildcats JV coach Keaton Belcher. As a member of the 2005 10th Region Championship Team, Keaton has the same memory as Joey Verax. The way the PC Community rallied around them, supported them and everywhere they went was stands full of red, black and white. Keaton was named the 10th Region Player of the Year his senior season, second team all-state honors by Courier Journal and Herald Leader and third team by the Associated Press. He is the only PCHS Wildcat to ever be named as part of the prestigious Ky/Ind. All Star team and continued his playing days at Belmont University. He was part of three NCAA Tournament teams while at Belmont and when he left, held the record for most games played, never having missed a single game in his collegiate career.

Mark Browning

Mark Browning is a member of the Pendleton County to Transylvania pipeline. Like several other of the 1,000 point club members, Mark remembers the battles vs the 38th District rival Bracken County. In the 1984-85 championship game, Bracken and Pendleton battled into overtime where Mark scored the final six points including the game clinching two free throws to win the district championship. At Transy, he was part of the 1988 NAIA National Championship team and was inducted into the Pioneer Hall of Fame.

Amy Moreland

The Ladycats all time leading scorer flew out to California this week and is unable to be with us but after Cathy Roseberry broke Nancy Moreland's career scoring record, it was only fitting that Amy Moreland take it back for the Moreland family. Amy holds the career record with over 1500 points but that is just one of 13 Ladycat basketball records she holds. But her fondest memory is having her two biggest fans, her parents Ron Moreland and Jo Vick in the stands cheering for her. She continued on to play at Northern Kentucky University.

Megan Wood

Possibly the only member of the 1,000 and 1,000 club, Megan Wood not only scored 1,000 points in her career but grabbed over 1,000 rebounds to be the complete player. She was chosen as 10th Region Player of the Year her senior season and All-Region three season as well as Honorable Mention All-State twice. She was also selected to represent KY in the KY/Ohio All Star game. She continued her playing days at Thomas More College where she teamed with fellow PCHS alum Jenna Kelsch to help lead TMC to some of the highest ranking seasons in school history.

Kelsie Pugh

Kelsie Pugh had no problem physically willing herself to over 1,100 points. Driven by a torn ACL in her seventh grade season, she worked relentlessly with her father to refine her game. She made a living on being more physical than her opponents and scoring from the free throw line. She tied the KHSAA record for most free throws made without a miss in a single game and holds the Ladycats records for most FT's made in a season and career. She continued playing at Kentucky Christian University where she was part of a national title.

Mason Monroe

We started the 1,000 point club ceremony with the first member, Dickie King and we finish with the latest member, Mason Monroe. He scored his 2,000 point last season and is presently continuing that PCHS-Transy tradition with a successful freshmen year. He is the #2 scorer in PCHS history and also #2 in assists while holding the record for most games played in his career. His teams won three 38th District Titles, made two 10th Region Final Four appearances and in 2012 made the magical run to the 10th Region Championship game. The lightning quick guard who could elevate over any defender for a jumper, fondly recalls the "whole county rallying behind the team" as a highlight of his career.

On behalf of these players who many either in the program or in their intro have alluded, their parents were ask to stand and recognized for all their dedication, commitment and love provided to their sons or daughter.

Lastly, many of the players mentioned it but the coaches, players, athletic directors wish to extend their thank you to the fans of Pendleton County basketball who have made what they do on the court even more special.

Wildcats record falls to 3-10, with two home games this week

By: Sam McClanahan, Reporter

The Pendleton County Wildcats basketball team is hoping that the new year will bring better results as the club currently sits at 3-10 with a season-high four game losing streak.

Before Christmas, the team traveled to Hilton Head, SC to take part in the Seahawk Classic. The 'Cats dropped the first two games before scoring their third win of the season. The losses came to Dutch Fork, 82-61, and Brookland-Cayce, 51-40. The lone victory came against Buford, 60-48. Senior Lance Jones led the team in scoring in the two losses, while Patrick McCain scored a team-high 13 points in the win against Buford. Tanner Pugh finished with 12 points and Michael Antrobus added 11.

Following Christmas, the 'Cats competed in the Bracken County Tournament on Dec. 26-28 and dropped three games.

The first game was against Burgin, and the 'Cats saw an eight-point lead with three minutes to play evaporate in what finalized as a 56-53 loss.

"Our offense fell flat, we had a total breakdown, said head coach Ed Cravens. "This was a game that we could've won."

Lance Jones led the Wildcats with 18 points, and Hunter Wood added 17.

The following day the 'Cats took on Newport and fell by a final of 87-70, despite shooting a blistering 53 percent from three-point range (14 of 26), the 'Cats allowed too many easy chance points to Newport in the high-scoring contest.

"Give credit to Newport, they're a solid, athletic team," commented Cravens. "You don't see many teams make 14 three's and lose a game, but we simply had too many defensive breakdowns."

Lance Jones led four Wildcat players in double-figures with 17 points. Michael Antrobus finished with 12 points and Hunter Wood and Robbie Gaskins each added 10 points apiece.

The teams final game of the tournament was a showdown with Beechwood. Adam Koeninger, the team's leading rebounder, missed the game due to illness. Despite missing it's main interior presense, the 'Cats took a one-point lead into the fourth quarter, 36-35. Beechwood then went on to outscore the 'Cats 26-13 in the final eight minutes to pull away with a 61-49 win. Lance Jones and Hunter Wood led the team with 13 points apiece.

Last Saturday evening, the 'Cats hosted border rival Bracken County. The Polar Bears came into town looking to notch just the teams third victory at PCHS since 1999. The teams played evenly through the first half as the 'Cats took a 32-29 lead into the half. Sharp three-point shooting and easy transition baskets allowed the Wildcats to build a ten-point lead midway through the third quarter. A late flurry by Bracken County cut the 'Cats lead to six entering the fourth quarter.

Over the final eight minutes of regulation the teams traded baskets at a frantic pace, and with 10.1 seconds remaining, Bracken County freshman guard Austin Crawford converted a layup to nod the score at 63 and send the game into overtime in the extra session, Crawford scored five of his game-high 38 points, including the game-winning free throws with 6.5 seconds to play to give the Polar Bears the 76-74 win. Lance Jones led the Wildcats with 24 points, while Hunter Wood and Patrick McCain each added 11.

This Tuesday, December 8 the 'Cats host Robertson County at 7:30 p.m. and will host Brossart on Dec. 9 also at 7:30 p.m. Then on December 11, the team travels to take on Calvary Christian.

Opening government to public oversight is the ultimate safeguard of democracy...

Passage of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) was a watershed moment for democracy. It reaffirmed the rights of US citizens to know how their elected representatives run the country – a fundamental right in any society built on the notion of a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. FOIA made permanent the concept that government cannot parcel out information as it sees fit, and instead memorialized the fact that government information ultimately belongs to its citizens. Through FOIA, ordinary citizens and the media have uncovered critical information regarding everything from health care delivery to the environment.

BLANKET CREEK

It has been a very busy month for Blanket Creek. The choir worked on special music for the month and the young people worked on Christmas presentations. Bro. Joe had to squeeze his messages in amongst everything else but he still managed to do a wonderful job sharing the words God put on his heart. We went Christmas caroling and spent some time with our shut-ins at Falmouth Nursing Home and River Valley. We did something new this year as some of our more "mature" members shared how Christmas was back when they were children. They didn't get near what kids today receive and appreciated it more. The most wonderful thing that happened this Christmas season was to know that God and the angels in heaven were greatly rejoicing as two of our youth Haley and Harryson Sweetland accepted the salvation that is offered to us all and were baptized in Jesus' name. We look forward to a wonderful new year of serving our Lord and invite you to come visit us and see what God has in store for you this year. God Bless.

BUTLER BAPTIST

Philippians 3:12-14 tells us things we can learn for the coming year. We all have an imperfect past but we do not have to be a slave to our past. Our goal for this year should be to grow in the Lord. The Bible feeds our soul and should be read everyday. It is worth getting closer to God this year because we need Him active in our life everyday. Turn the page this year and step up our relationship with God by forgiving others, turning away from sin and not worshipping our money. Happy New Year. Join us as we worship our Lord and Savior.

CHAPEL OF PRAISE

Praise the Lord, for God is moving at The Chapel. Happy New Year to everyone. We are excited at The Chapel to see what God has in store for us in 2014. If you are looking for a home church to start the New Year out right please come and visit with us, you will be blessed. When Jesus comes first, others come second and yourself comes last, you will find JOY. What a great way to begin the New Year. In Psalms 16:11 we read, Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fullness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore. Have a blessed week.

FALMOUTH CHRISTIAN

Brother Nathan's message was from Luke 1:26-38, "The Annunciation."

What would you do if an angel appeared to you? Christ's birth gives us hope and optimism for the future. Jesus was born, He died in our place, and He rose from the dead. If we put faith in Him we will live with Him in glory. Jesus is with us even now. So, let us heed Gabriel's advice: "Rejoice in Christ this season, cease being afraid because we have a Good Shepherd who loves us, and remember that God is almighty. There is nothing He can't do.

Brother Nathan's message for

"What is man that You take thought of him, and the Son of man that You care for him?"
~ Psalm 8:4

the Christmas Eve service was about the birth of Jesus. Then there was the lighting of the Christ candle, then the lighting of everyone's candle from the Christ candle.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

FIRST BAPTIST

Blessings! On December 22, our Advent Candle, Love, was lit by Tammy and Mark Moore. The evening of December 22nd, we gathered for our Candle Light services. Scriptures were read and carols were sung. Mike Whaley sang special music. After everyone's candles were lit off the Christ candle, we closed by singing, "Let There Be Peace on Earth."

On Sunday the 29 special music was sung by Tammy Moore.

Bro. Harry's message was taken from Matthew. It told of how wise men traveled far distances to worship baby Jesus. Today we must diligently seek the Lord, always.

This Christmas season has been full of happiness and sorrow. So many have lost loved ones this year. Pray for the lost, those who feel hopeless, those seeking love and peace, our military, our country and our country.

"Wise men still seek Jesus!"

HARVEST

Bro. Dale's morning message was titled, "How to Get Started Right in 2014." There are only two paths of life before us - God's way of obedience or the way of rebellion and destruction. Be sure to choose God's path because the path you choose determines how you will spend eternity. Learn to follow God by meditating on His Word. Making a resolution for the New Year to grow closer to God? We invite you to be our guest at 111 E. Shelby Street, 9:30 a.m. Bible study for all ages, 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. worship services on Sundays. Our youth meet on Sunday and Wednesday evenings at 6 p.m. Prayer service on Wednesday evenings at 6 p.m. Come "Share the love of Jesus in a practical way."

Prayer concerns: Danielle Klaber, Shirley Barriack and the families of Elsie Hart, John Conrad and Johnny Deaton.

MT. MORIAH

Sunday, December 29, was a great day at Mt. Moriah. The congregation was in good spirits as we closed the Christmas season. The choir went into the congregation on the last verse of the anthem to give greetings to the people. Several joyfully joined the choir in singing. It was an uplifting experience. We were glad to have Keith Sturgill with us. He has just returned from Afghanistan. We wish him well as he completes his military duties.

We pray for Charity and Marcus Oldendick and their unborn twin babies. One of the babies is having serious problems. Charity is the daughter of Debbie and Danny Sharp. We are also happy that Levi Wolfe is doing well after his surgery.

Please pray for all people with additions.

"My eyes have seen your salvation, which you have prepared in the presence of all people." Luke 2:30-31

Please remember in prayer Dennis Sharp, Hannah Perkins, Tina Cochran, Tammy Lockhart, Paul Dryer, David Wynn, Marilyn Jarvis, Randy Teegarden and the White, Blackburn and Sexton families and also pray for our country and its leaders.

OAKLAND CHRISTIAN

A late "Happy New Year" to all! We always pray for a better year with God being the center of our lives. God's love is so powerful. You can trust that God will do the impossible if only you ask.

It was great to have John Michael Moore in our services as he was on leave from the Navy.

PLEASANT RIDGE

Congratulations to Bro. Rick and Gail on the birth of their second great-granddaughter.

Tell it to Jesus, He is a friend that's well known.

Bro. Rick's message was from Acts 13:51.

But they shook off the dust from their feet against them, and came to Iconium. Paul and Barnabas had went to Antioch. Many of the Gentiles accepted their message of eternal life. Many of the Jews did not. They were following Jesus' instruction. If they do not accept the message shake the dust off of your feet and go on. Stop carrying the burdens of the past. God does not want you to worry or get upset with what happened yesterday. How do you stop bad things going through your mind? Acceptance!

This doesn't mean that you like the situation it means you can't do anything about it. Carrying those things around within you hampers your ability to serve Him. How has your walk with God been this year?

Sunday evening Bible study is in Genesis.

TURNER RIDGE

We gathered to worship and sing praises to His name December 29. Uncle Dale led the children's message "Angels Watching Over Us." He shared how many of us have angels on top of our Christmas trees and how angels watch over us. An angel told Mary of the birth of Jesus, and told shepherds of the baby's birth; then protected Jesus after he was born from King Herod.

Raven Koettel read scripture, Acts 1:9-11. Bro. Dale's message "Jesus' Command For A New Year" spoke of the amazing things the Lord has done and all the works that lay ahead. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28

Let's look at 2014 with great anticipation and expectation. Join us and find out what God has planned for you

The Amish Cook shares recipe for ranch snack mix

The Amish Cook

By Lovina Eicher

Today is laundry day again. I also have dough rising for bread and cinnamon rolls. I made two batches of cinnamon rolls yesterday. Daughter Susan made all the frosting for me for the rolls. She is always the one I get to do that for me.

The last rolls came out of the oven around 8 or 9 p.m. So I had to wait to frost them until they were cooled off enough. After the frosting was set enough I put them in Ziploc bags.

Sunday, December 22 my husband Joe celebrated his 45th birthday. Another reminder that we aren't getting any younger.

We had some excited children this past week when we were dumped with some snow. Not sure how many inches we had total but it was a beautiful sight to behold. The children have spent all their free time sledding down the hill in the hay field.

RANCH SNACK MIX

Last night Kevin came in with some very cold toes. I think he stayed outside a little too long without coming inside to warm up. Our border collie is always by Kevin's side and races him and the sled down the hill. Try this party mix.

INGREDIENTS:

- 12 ounce box very thin pretzels
- 12 ounce bag Bugles
- 10 ounce can cashews
- 6 ounce box bit size cheddar cheese fish crackers.
- 1 envelope ranch dressing mix
- 1 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
- 1 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 3/4 cup vegetable oil

DIRECTIONS:

Mix snacks in large bowl. Mix remaining ingredients together and pour over snacks. Bake at 200° for one hour stirring every 15 minutes.

USDA's Farm and Ranch Lands Protection Program 2014 funding deadline

USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Kentucky announced that they will accept applications from entities for the Farm and Ranch Lands Protection Program (FRPP) through February 21, 2014. Applications submitted after this date will be held for the next funding consideration and ranking, likely in federal fiscal year 2015. NRCS does not accept applications directly from individual landowners for this program. Landowners must work through an approved entity to participate in FRPP.

NRCS administers the program that has protected more than 2 million acres of the nation's most valuable lands for the production of food, feed and fiber since 1996. In Kentucky, FRPP funds have helped purchase 191 conservation easements on over 32,000 acres and will help secure six more in the near future. Several of the protected farms have been of historical and/or archaeological importance including a civil war battle field.

tance including a civil war battle field.

"In order to feed the increasing world population, we must ensure farmers have prime agricultural land available. FRPP easements ensure that productive farms are protected from development and will be kept in agricultural uses forever," said Assistant State Conservationist for Programs, Deena Wheby.

The amount available for this program in Kentucky for 2014 is approximately $1.7 million. This program provides matching funds to organizations to purchase conservation easements on private working lands.

Interested entities must complete information regarding the Kentucky 2014 FRPP funding and application process by visiting <http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/wps/portal/nrcs/main/ky/programs/easements/farmranch/>.

All applications for 2014 funding must be received by 4:30 p.m. on Friday, February 21, 2014.

2014 acreage reporting dates

Kentucky USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Executive Director John W. McCauley announced that producers now have until January 15, 2014 to report crops that have a November 15, 2013 or December 15, 2013 reporting deadline without paying a late-filed fee. Crops under this waiver include wheat, rye and native and improved grasses intended for grazing or haying. The Risk Management Agency (RMA) did not grant a waiver so producers need to consult their crop insurance agent for deadlines for insured crops.

"In order to comply with FSA program eligibility requirements, all producers are encouraged to visit their County FSA office to file an accurate crop certification report by the applicable deadline," said McCauley.

Kentucky announces 2014 Farm Bill Program participation

The USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Kentucky is encouraging landowners, farmers and producers to visit their local NRCS office now to receive information and apply for conservation technical assistance and possible financial funding opportunities.

The application process for NRCS's conservation programs is continuous, but funding selections for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) first application cutoff period date for consideration for 2014 funds is January 17, 2014. Applications received after January 17, 2014, will be held until the next application cut off period, which will be April 18, 2014.

EQIP is a conservation program that provides financial and technical assistance to farmers and ranchers who face threats to soil, water, air, and related natural resources on their land. Through EQIP, NRCS develops contracts with agricultural producers to voluntarily implement conservation practices. Persons engaged in livestock or agricultural production and owners of non-industrial private non-industrial forestland, and other farm or ranch lands.

All recipients of assistance are required to develop a conservation process. Landowners should work with a conservation planner to develop the plan based on the landowner's operational goals to improve the productivity, sustainability and profitability of their operation. The conservation plan will serve as a road map to a variety of technical assistance and financial assistance through EQIP and WHIP, as well as other options available to the landowner.

A new procedure is in place to help prevent errors in the operating room. It's called Sign Your Site. Before any surgery, the doctor signs the correct spot on the body where an operation is to occur, while the patient watches and verifies. Orthopaedic surgeons have been advocating it for years. Now, even more doctors are doing it. Visit aaos.org to find out more, because when it comes to surgery, there's no such thing as being too cautious.

The South's Finest Pralines

What You Need

- 1 1/2 c sugar
- 1 1/2 c packed light brown sugar
- 1/8 tsp salt
- 3 tbsp dark corn syrup
- 1 c evaporated milk
- 2 tbsp butter
- 1 tsp pure vanilla extract
- 1 1/2 c pecan halves

Directions

- Butter the sides of a heavy 2-quart saucepan.
- Put the sugars, salt, corn syrup, milk and butter in saucepan.
- Over medium heat, stir mixture constantly with a wooden spoon until sugars have dissolved and mixture comes to a boil.

- Continue to cook to a soft ball stage, approximately 236 degrees on a candy thermometer. (If you do a cold water test, drizzle a drop of candy into a glass of cold water. The ball of candy will flatten between your fingers when you take it out of the water.)
- Remove from heat and allow to cool for 8 minutes.
- Add the vanilla and nuts. Beat with a spoon by hand for approximately 2 minutes or until candy is slightly thick and begins to lose its gloss.
- Quickly drop heaping tablespoons onto waxed paper.
- If the candy becomes stiff, add a few drops of hot water.

- Janet
